"Rescuer" Fine — "Papa" Not So Good

Parachutes of the Skeet Club

America prepares her defenses at home but the prospect that she will go to the aid of Britain and France is steadily dwindling. The best analysis is that given last month by the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs, and I am indebted to St. Louis Post-Dispatch for the following excerpt from the senate report:

"If we allow ourselves to become engaged in the war in Europe as we did in the last war, one thing is certain: the whole energies of our people, of necessity, will be ordered, regimented and directed by a single authority. Everything — man power, industrial power, transportation, industry itself — will be at the service of the government. It will assume absolute power over the life of every citizen."

"All this vast machinery of control, all these dictatorial powers, will be unnecessary if we will do some straight thinking on the subject of national defense and decide to adopt, and carry out faithfully the sound policy of defending ourselves upon the seas. Why should we go to war to defend freedom, if we must begin by destroying it with our own hands? We need not do this. The cold, hard military fact is this: Our navy, if adequate, supplemented by a highly efficient army and air force, will be so effective that few nations, not excluding victorious totalitarian nations, will challenge its power; and if any does, we shall be the deliverer and not the recipient of the terrible hammer strokes of war."

United States senators who signed the above report are: Democrats — Walsh of Massachusetts, Tydings of Maryland, Smith of South Carolina, Russell of Georgia, Bone of Washington, Byrd of Virginia, Gerry of Rhode Island, Holt of West Virginia, Andrews of Florida, Gillette of Iowa, Ellender of Louisiana, Lucas of Illinois; and the following Republicans — Hale of Maine, Davis of Pennsylvania, Johnson of California, Gibson of Vermont (he died this Thursday morning in Washington), and Barbour of New Jersey.

Nothing can be added to the senate committee's statement in the name of cold, hard logic and common sense.

I suppose the average American shares my own feeling that the United States, if it were necessary, could build enough airplanes, tanks and big guns to actually invade Europe and put down the audacious Mr. Hitler and Mr. Mussolini.

We could do that, I believe, because the engines with which Germany conquered France are the sort of thing America manufactures more of than all nations combined. Give us a couple of years to change the dies in our factories — and we are ready to go.

But after we have gone — what then? If France and England are either unable or unwilling to alter their industrial life to allow for mass production methods that will hold Germany in check, then any nation that goes to the rescue of Europe will find that it has taken Europe "to raise."

Ambition to be a "rescuer" is chilled by the thought of playing Papa WPA to the whole world. Common sense dictates, as the senate report clearly says, that we arm ourselves to the teeth and fight off any threat here at home.

Postmaster Robert Wilson, reading all the rib-roasting Hope sportsmen have been giving his cousin Jim Wilson about the ham offered as a prize at the Columbus skeet club but never yet given away, has given our Hope gunmen a chance to hit "em".

Something tells me I am going to hear from this.

"No Friends"
BORDEAUX — (AP) — Marshal Petain, French premier, told the people Thursday they had lost the fight to Germany because they had "fewer friends" than in 1914-18 — "fewer young men, less arms, and too few allies."

By the Associated Press
Hostilities between France and the axis armies is expected to cease Friday — Saturday at the latest — the official Italian news agency reported Thursday, asserting that the French plenipotentiaries started back to Bordeaux with terms dictated by Hitler and Mussolini.

The place of meeting with the French envoys, who arrived in a snow white plane "somewhere" behind the German lines, was not given. The German high command meanwhile announced the fall of Lyon, third largest French city, and the capture of more than 200,000 prisoners.

Cabinet Man

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt took steps to form a coalition cabinet Thursday, by submitting to the senate the nominations of Colonel Frank Knox to be secretary of the navy and Henry L. Stimson to be secretary of war.

Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, was a Republican vice-presidential candidate in 1936.

Stimson was secretary of state under Hoover, and secretary of war under Taft.

Submission of the nominations was accompanied by a White House announcement — without amplification — that Secretary of War Woodring had resigned from the cabinet effective on senate confirmation of his successor.

White House officials did say that Woodring's letter of resignation was "so personal" that the usual custom would not be followed and it would not be made public.

Knox will succeed Charles Edison, whose resignation becomes effective June 24. Edison quit the cabinet to Jersey as a Democrat.

Ford Denies Deal With the English

Will Manufacture Planes for U. S. Defense Only

DETROIT, Mich. (AP)—Henry Ford emphasized Wednesday that if his plants get into the production of war materials it will be for "defensive purposes only." Asked about an announcement from London, Wednesday that the British government had contracted with his company for 6,000 Rolls-Royce Merlin aviation engines, Ford said:

"We are not doing business with the British government or any other foreign government. If we make 6,000 Rolls-Royce Merlin engines it will be on an order from the United States government."

He said no such order had been received.

He recalled that when he had said a few weeks ago that he could, under certain conditions, get airplane production up to 1,000 units a day, he had specifically pointed out that this would be for "defensive purposes only."

"That 'defensive purposes only' has been and still is part of the bargain all the way through," he said. "We have no agreement with anybody for the production of war materials if and when we do have one it will be on that basis and with the United States government only."

Uruguay to Curb German Tourists

Little Republic Fears Nazi Intervention There

MONTEVIDEO, (AP)—Little Uruguay called Wednesday upon her two million people to destroy the Trojan horse. Officials acted to limit the influx of "tourists." The man-on-the-street took heart at the approaching visit of the United States cruiser Quincy, due Thursday on a good neighbor tour.

Uruguay is the Achilles heel of South America. A parliamentary commission has issued a 3-point indictment of Nazi infiltration. The commission said it disclosed a Nazi plan for military occupation of the nation. The report said evidence had been found of a scheme to make over Uruguay's national life and create a "little Germany" in South America.

The German legation in Montevideo was said to have directed Nazi propaganda. Twelve German leaders were detained. The army was ordered to stand ready, although spokesmen said the report seemed to show no immediate threat.

President Alfredo Baldomir was quoted in an interview that the danger of a foreign thrust, "while not immediate" was "sufficient to cause grave preoccupation."

Ticket to Hollywood

BY W. H. PEARLS

YESTERDAY: Francie decides to use a woman's wiles to get the ticket from Gust. After a dance, she urges him to park at the airport. Gust is falling for her, but, succumbing to the influence of moonlight and perfume when Francie mentions the ticket. Angrily, Gusty refuses to surrender it, drives Francie home.

CHAPTER IV

FRANCIE slept on a tear-wet pillow. She awakened late, sunshine curled like a warm, yellow kitten on her bed. The gentle breeze puffed at the lace curtains. She brushed her hair languidly, studying her face in the mirror. Last night's tears had left shadows under her eyes. No color showed in her cheeks, young cheeks. Francie suddenly felt herself very much the Lady of Sorrow. She arranged her hair in severe lines away from her ears, and scorned all make-up.

Downstairs she paused outside the living room, hearing her father say, "As usual, Hat, you're making Wagnerian tragedy out of a simple quarrel. Francie'll patch things up with Gusty and forget all about this fool ticket."

Aunt Hat said, "Indeed, John? I hardly expected you to understand."

"I think I understand Francie," Mr. Weston said quietly. "She's got too much common sense to let this get her down."

"Young dreams . . ." Aunt Hat murmured. "How little a man understands them! A soul crying for artistic expression. Ah, the poor child."

As if this were her cue, Francie entered the room. Without conscious effort, she had slipped into the role assigned to her by Aunt Hat. The white, quilted robe made her seem fragile. Her eyes held a faraway look.

John Weston scrutinized his daughter sharply. "Good morning, dear. Have a good sleep?"

"I—I guess so, Pops."

"Is anything wrong, Francie?" John Weston asked. "I saw you go out with Gusty last night. Haven't you patched up your quarrel?"

Francie said frigidly, "My opinion of Gusty Gair has not changed, Pops."

"Oh," He returned to the Sunday paper, his brow furrowed.

From the kitchen Aunt Hat called, "Do have coffee, dear."

Francie obeyed languidly. Tipping the dripulator, Aunt Hat whispered, "Did you get it, Francie? Oh, you did! You show the grain you've been under. That's it, isn't it, Francie?"

Truth, poised upon Francie's tongue, was never uttered. Aunt Hat was so eager, so sure that her methods couldn't fail. Francie simply hadn't the courage to admit that Gusty had been too smart for them. Besides, what difference could it make? Pops wouldn't take them to Hollywood, anyway.

She said, "Everything's all right, Aunt Hat."

"Oh, darling, I'm so glad! You've no idea what this trip means to me."

Francie said, "You're pretty sure Pops will go."

"Trust me, Francie. I've only begun to work on him."

THE next few days bore out Aunt Hat's assertion. Morning and evening Francie would hear the discussion going on. Unwittingly, she herself contributed to the cause by falling deeper into her Lady of Sorrow role. Each day she waited for Gusty to come and beg forgiveness, but he remained stubbornly away. Each day Francie's pallor deepened.

At the dinner table Wednesday evening, John Weston said, "Francie, you haven't eaten a thing all week. You're losing weight. Just what is the matter?"

Francie said wanly, "Nothing, Pops."

"Your Aunt Hat doesn't agree, Francie. She thinks you need a change. Hollywood, perhaps. How does that sound?"

"Why, Pops, . . ."

"Oh, John," Aunt Hat bubbled, "you're really decided to take us!"

"I'm trying to look at it unselfishly," John Weston admitted. "Goodness knows I don't want to be the only one to enjoy the vacation. I can fish in California, I guess."

For a moment Francie was infected with her aunt's enthusiasm. Even without the ticket it would be fun. And you could never tell what might happen. Some big director might see her and . . .

"It's a long trip," Mr. Weston was saying, "but maybe it'll do us all good. Hat's worked hard and deserves a rest. And I'm hoping, Francie, that once you've satisfied your curiosity about Hollywood, you'll get your appetite back and be a normal girl. Well, do you like the idea?"

"Oh, Pops . . ." Francie hugged him tight. "You're so swell to us. I—I think I'll have one of those pork chops now . . ."

THE week bustled by in a frenzy of shopping and packing. There was no time to think of Gusty. Whenever Aunt Hat mentioned the ticket, Francie evaded a direct answer. She didn't want to lie, nor could she bring herself to tell the truth. Aunt Hat's whole vacation would be ruined if she knew.

Friday evening John Weston

said, "I had Gusty tune up the car today, Francie."

Francie feigned disinterest, went on packing.

"He asked about the trip, what route we were taking and all. I told him he ought to drop over and say goodbye."

Francie blushed. "Pops, you shouldn't . . ."

"Gusty said he guessed it wouldn't be such a hot idea."

"No, no, it wouldn't," Francie said.

But she watched for him all evening. Now that Gusty knew she was going, the only decent thing he could do would be to bring her the ticket. . . . At 10 o'clock she gave up and went to bed.

John Weston had everyone awake at daylight. They were all too excited to eat breakfast. When they finally piled into the big sedan, Francie could hardly believe they were starting for Hollywood. Why, anything could happen in Hollywood! She might even see Jerry Finney . . .

"Say goodbye to the old town for a whole month," Mr. Weston laughed.

Francie gazed back at the unimpressive skyline of Elspeth City. How drab it looked! How glad she was to get away from it! From small-minded people like Gusty Gair.

Mr. Weston said, "Think he'll wait for you, Francie?"

"I—I don't want him to!" Francie cried. "I'm through with Gusty."

AND yet, as they drove along, she caught herself worrying about all the girls in Elspeth City who were crazy over Gusty. They were always chasing after him. Well, they'd have a clear field now. All Francie hoped was that no one like that disgusting Tilda Blake would catch Gusty.

John Weston drove at a moderate speed. Francie, in a fever of excitement, wondered how she could stand the long hours until they got to Hollywood.

At sundown, Mr. Weston decided to stop at the next cabin camp. They pulled up before a long row of stucco buildings and he went inside to register.

Aunt Hat had gone to inspect the sleeping quarters. Francie was alone in the car. Suddenly she sat upright in astonishment. She could scarcely believe her eyes. Down the road sped a debilitated old roadster. Behind the wheel sat a black-haired young man. He slowed down as he passed and moped his assorted cow horns.

He raised one hand in the air, grinned. "Hi-yah, Sugar!" Gusty Gair bellowed.

BASICALLY DIFFERENT MOTOR OIL

has 3 to 10 TIMES Stronger Film and Removes Carbon

LION NATURALUBE CLEANS OUT HARD CARBON WHILE YOU DRIVE . . SAVES FUEL, ADDS POWER GIVES HIGHEST TYPE PROTECTION AGAINST FRICTION . . . SAVES WEAR, SAVES REPAIRS

Distilled from a rare petroleum, Naturalube possesses greater natural lubricating qualities than oils of conventional types. Greater adhesiveness, penetrativeness and film strength enable Naturalube to promptly form a super-strong, protective film on all friction points in the motor. Innumerable tests have shown that Naturalube's protective film is three to ten times stronger than even the best known, highest-priced oils of other types.

Furthermore, Naturalube keeps motors cleaner than conventional type oils. Its natural solvent power gradually loosens hard carbon deposits which are blown out through the exhaust or washed away by the oil. Thus Naturalube conserves power, saves gasoline, and saves on the expense of cleaning out carbon.

Daily, thousands of motorists are proving that Naturalube's ability to remove hard carbon adds power and saves gasoline . . . also, that Naturalube's three to ten times stronger film saves wear and repairs.

Guard against motor troubles and unnecessary expense by having your motor drained and refilled with Lion Naturalube, the new type motor oil that removes carbon — adds power — saves wear. Sold at the sign of the Lion.

Money-Back Guarantee

Cancellation Mark?

The Nazi swastika looks ever darker as a final cancellation mark on the Treaty of Versailles, which beaten Germany signed after the World War. It is reported that by June 28, anniversary of the signing, Adolf Hitler would force upon France a new "Treaty of Versailles" in the ancient Palace, to "obliterate the day of shame of 1919." The above layout shows the swastika shadowing the impressive facade of the Palace of Versailles and the scene as Germany signed in 1919.

Herring Has Just Mined 70 Years

98 Year Old Mining President Is Still Active

AP Feature Service

SPOKANE, Wash.—Wealey J. Herring, springy 88-year-old president of the Elgin and Ogden Mining Company of Wardner, Idaho, denies he has always been a miner.

"Just the last 70 years," he explained on one of his frequent trips out of the silver-lead-zinc district of the Coeur d'Alenes where he operates.

"I expect I'll keep it a couple of years more," he added reflectively. "That will make me a hundred. I might retire then. I don't know, though, it depends on how I feel."

Herring drifted into the Coeur d'Alenes from New Mexico nearly half a century ago and stayed first as a mine employee, then as a contract miner and finally as an independent operator with three claims in the famous dry belt on Big Creek where the famous Sunshine mine, richest silver producer in America, is located.

Herring sees little romance in being a factor in the development of the West. "It's mostly a lot of work," he surmises.

"But," he added, "it was a lot of fun drifting around New Mexico in the 80's and 90's with a couple of cayuses, a pair of six-shooters and a bowie knife."

"You know something," he switched the subject as the photographer snapped a picture. "That's the first picture I've had taken since one that was taken of me and another fellow in South Bend, Indiana, before we came west. I was 23 then."

"Hm, that would be 75 years ago, wouldn't it? Yes, sir, time does fly."

The vilest-smelling compound known to man is mercaptan.

not being voluntary on my part, but following a "licking" which I had received at school, and the declaration of my father that he would take me with him where I would get into no more trouble of that kind."

Finally, what is the importance of your work to society?

"The easiest and possibly the best answer to this question is in the neophyte. What would present day society and business be without printing?"

In answering the question as to the most desirable age to enter the printing trade, Mr. McCorkle, replied: "I hardly consider myself qualified to answer this question since I was taken into a printing office at the age of 10 years, this action

Bowie Knives Used by 1856 Delegates

Well-Dressed Convention Men Toted
Long Knives

This is the first of four daily articles that will show you the color, rivalries and strategies of national political conventions that picked American presidents in the good old days.

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
AP Feature Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Whatever fireworks the Republicans and Democrats may touch off at Philadelphia and Chicago, this year's conventions will be as decorous as mid-Victorian congressional contests compared with the gunning-pow-wow of the past.

Go back to June, 1856, when the newly organized Republican party held its first nominating convention.

The controversy over extension of slavery is at civil war stage in "bloody Kansas." Towns have been captured and houses burned.

Moderate leaders on both sides, fearing the union will be smashed, urge conciliation, but most campaigners battle fiercely. An abolitionist senator from Massachusetts says: "President Pierce goes to the Democratic convention with the light of the burning dwellings of Kansas flashing up in his brain."

Freemont 'Grappled' Grizzlies

Republicans, meeting at Philadelphia, choose as their standard bearer,
Gen. John C. Fremont of California, Mexican-war veteran and frontiersman as delegates shout: "We'll go for Fremont, he grappled with the grizzly bear and he beat the Indians. He can beat the slave drivers."

Convention delegates from the far west carry long rifles, come east by stage-coach, running a gantlet of Indians.

The Democratic convention assembles in Cincinnati to the roar of the Empire club's artillery. The Benton delegates from Missouri, excluded from the convention hall, knock down the doorkeepers to gain entrance.

"Bowie knives and revolvers are flourished but no great harm is done," a newspaper reports.

Buchanan is nominated on the 17th ballot and Democratic journals assert: "The radical black Republicans are on the run." Buchanan wins the presidency but the Republicans carry every northern state except four and run strongly in those. This sectional alignment is to be sharply drawn for many years.

Civil War in Air

Comes 1860 and the nation is on the brink of civil war. Chicago, young Babylon of the west, is jammed with visitors to the Republican convention—bearded men in tall hats, long coats and black boots. Women in poke bonnets, shawls and hoop skirts. New York's William H. Seward is the party's leading presidential possibility. Horace Greeley and some other fear, however,

WE THE WOMEN

Right Technique Eases Job-Hunting
For Grad Who Is "Stranger
in Town"

By RUTH MILLETT
A college graduate, fresh out of a school of journalism, recently came to me for advice.

New York was new and strange. Job-hunting was new and strange. But today that girl has a job, which pays enough to support her without any help from home.

How did she do it—a girl from the Middle West, with no friends in New York, no experience, no pull—when there are thousands of experienced men and women out of work in the big city?

Followed a System

Well, she went at the business of job-hunting in a business-like way.
She was smart enough to know that beginners can't be choosers.

Here is the job-hunting technique she used which could be followed by any young person in any city:

First she talked to several persons in the line of work she wanted to do —asking nothing of them but a few minutes of time, and their honest advice. She used the time well, not just saying "Advise me," but asking practical questions.

Then she found the names of two of the leading agencies in the city, and sent both of them on her "employability," so that they were both willing to register her.

Next she started job-hunting on her own, following the leads she had thought of before she left school.

Whenever she had any spare time, she explored the city so that she knew her way around. She became acquainted with the city's newspapers, and through their ads learned something about stores.

She was so careful to be smart-

Peaches Fit in Most Anywhere
in Your Plans

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

Peaches and cream—that's about the last word in fruit perfection. But for a change now and then, try peaches in some other way. For breakfast, fry them and serve with crisp bacon and rolls. Use firm but ripe peaches.
Cut in half and remove pits. Sprinkle lightly with salt and then roll in brown sugar. Fry them gently in hot bacon drippings. That's a new brand of breakfast surprise.

For luncheon, serve them baked.
Use large peaches. Peel, cut in half, remove pits. Into each cavity, place a little butter, about 1 teaspoon sugar, 1/4 teaspoon lemon juice and a shake of cinnamon. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for about 15 or 20 minutes. Serve hot with cold cream.

Peach ice cream is rated as one of the best of all frozen desserts. Here are two recipes, one for the automatic refrigerator, one for the old-fashioned and ever popular hand freezer.

Peach Ice Cream for Refrigerator Tray

One and one-half cups fresh peach pulp, 1-3 cup (or more to taste) granulated sugar, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 cup heavy cream, well whipped, 1-3 cup evaporated milk.

Sprinkle sugar over peach pulp and stand 10 minutes. Then add salt and lemon juice. Stir and stand 5 minutes. Combine gently the whipped cream and undiluted evaporated milk. Add to peach pulp mixture.
Freeze in refrigerator tray until mushy. Remove from tray and scrape bottom and sides until smooth. Return to tray and freeze for 3 hours more.

Peach Ice Cream for Hand

Freezer

Three cups fresh peach pulp, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cups granulated sugar, 1-3 teaspoon almond extract, 1 quart heavy cream, 1-1-3 tablespoons lemon juice.

Add salt to peach pulp. Sprinkle pulp with sugar, lemon juice and almond extract. Stand for about 10 minutes, stirring several times. Chill, then add cream (do not whip the cream). Freeze in hand freezer, using 3 parts ice to 1 part salt. Remove dasher, then pack for 2 hours in 4 parts ice and 1 part salt. This will ripen the ice cream and give it a smoother texture.

Why They Wear Red Coats

When the sport of fox hunting was in its infancy, it was found that a hunter who had fallen from his mount could be more easily located if he more a red coat, so most fox hunters now wear red or pink coats.

Debunking a Superstition

An old superstition has it that if a horse hair is left in water for three days, it will turn into a snake. Long hair-like worms sometimes seen in water probably gave rise to this erroneous impression.

Most Mispronounced

Among the most frequently mispronounced words in the English language are: address, automobile, acclimate, dirigible, magazine, museum, hospitable, and positively.

It is bad luck to go back to a dressing room for a forgotten article once one has left the theater, according to a superstition of show people.

According to tests, the lifting power of an average-size mushroom is 27 pounds.

ly dressed whenever she had an interview that when she applied for a model's job she got it.

"Thoughtful of Her Friends
"I never thought I'd land a job on my waistline instead of on my brains," she wrote me when she let me know of her success. (That is another thing. She remember to write and thank the persons who had talked with her, and to tell them how she was coming along in her job-hunting).

And she added, "I'll keep this until I can get into the kind of work
I want."

Five years from now that girl may be writing advertising—describing the clothes she has learned to know through modeling. The job you don't especially want can lead to the one you do, if you are smart.

All Graceful Hands Are Beautiful Too

Hand Beauty Is a Matter of Grace, Says Expert

By ALICIA HART
NEA Service Staff Writer

Regardless of their shape or size, every woman can have beautiful hands.

Hand beauty is a matter of grace—in movement and in repose. These encouraging comments come from Ray Albert, photographic illustrator and authority on hand beauty. Mr. Albert is responsible for the allure of the hands used in many advertisements. His favorite hand model, Florence Pearsall, is the first model ever to have her hands contracted for on an exclusive basis. "Photo-Plastic" means "Graceful."

"Miss Pearsall's hands are photo-plastic," says Mr. Albert. "This means that, whether they are still or moving, they always form graceful lines. Furthermore, you don't catch Miss Pearsall, or any other woman whose hands are really lovely, folding them in her lap. It's a definite sign of age to hold your own hands."

"And it's just as definite a sign that you don't know the rules of hand beauty if you continually smooth your hair with one hand while talking, pick at your finger nails, rub your ear, twist the corner of your handkerchief, or otherwise fidget. When sitting in an easy chair, don't keep your hands at the same level. They should not rest on the same

Medwick Felled By Pitched Ball

Brooklyn Dodger teammates carry outfielder Joe Medwick from field after he was struck on the head by ball pitched by former Cardinal teammate, Bob Bowman, in first inning of Card-Dodger game at Flatbush, Medwick, just recently acquired by Manager Leo Durocher from the Cardinals, suffered a slight concussion and is expected to be out of uniform about three weeks.

THE PAYOFF

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Staff Writer

TOLEDO — Star shotmakers here for the Inverness Invitational Four-Ball agree no one ever more richly deserved the United States Open crown than Lawson Little.

The handsome chap who came down in front at Cleveland's Canterbury is the first leader of the nation's qualifiers to prevail in the championship.

Little launched his title drive in Chicago, May 27, when despite rain and mud, he broke the No. 4 course record at Olympia Fields with a 65. He followed that with a 69 on the No. 1 course for a total of 134.

Little launched his title drive in Open title—two to qualify, four in the championship proper and another to dispose of stout-hearted Gene Sarazen in the playoff. His total for these seven rounds was 491 strokes, an average of 70.17 and a total of 11 under the aggregate par.

Between the qualifier and the championship itself, Little played superbly in the Goodall Round Robin at Fresh Meadow, where he matched Ben Hogan's 6, which tied Gene Sarazen's course record.

Little Even Score With Sarazen in Playoff Match

Inasmuch as Little repelled Sarazen, 70-73, in the Open playoff, it is interesting to recall that Sarazen beat Little, 70-71, in their Goodall match.

Little was ready for the Open and saw it through, and it is a pleasure to see his striking figure in the Invitational Four-Ball at Inverness, a club entwined completely with the great sport and its background tacular National Opens.

phone. If one is on the chair arm, the other should be in the lap."

Mr. Albert thinks that it is a great mistake not to take time enough to find out just how the nails should be shaped to best set off the shape of the fingers. He points out, for instance, that extremely long, pointed nails make tiny fingers seem incongruous.

Consciousness of Good Hands Helps ease

The noted photographer maintains that exercises are the answer to achievement to grace in hands.

"The joints and muscles of the hands like those of any other part of the body, become stiff and awkward from lack of use. Suitable exercises need not be strenuous, but they must be done regularly. Opening and closing the fists, bending and unbending each finger, rotating the fingers are simple yet efficacious routines."

He is firmly convinced that the woman who does hand exercises, is meticulous about her manicures and keeps her hands smooth and soft as well as graceful, is likely to be a more poised individual than one whose hands are rough and red and awkward.

Louis Is Rated 5 to 1 Favorite

Joe Lewis and Arturo Godoy Battle Thursday Night

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK—(AP)—Facing the most dangerous foreign challenge to the world's heavyweight championship since Max Baer's victory over Primo Carnera, Joe Louis makes the 11th defense of his title's richest prize Thursday night in Yankee Stadium against Arturo Godoy of Chile.

Some 30,000 are expected when the shooting starts at 8 p. m. (CST). They'll contribute to an anticipated gross gate of more than $150,000. Of the net, Louis receives 40 per cent. Godoy will get 17½ per cent for the tussle of 15 rounds or less.

Louis, who took a split decision over the Chilean fisherman last February, although befuddled by Godoy's crouching style, predicted he was "going to make this one as short as possible." Arturo, recalling he was weakened in the last meeting by a cold, insisted he would be the "first heavyweight champion from South America" when the firing ceases.

Nevertheless, the Broadway bookmakers and the "experts" were virtually unanimous in picking Louis. The Bomber was 1 to 5 to do it any way, and 1 to 2 to do it the hard way—chilling the Chilean before the 15 rounds were up.

This corner picks Louis to flatten Arturo within seven rounds.

"Yep," Louis stated flatly, "this is gonna be a different kind of fight than last time. I'm ready for any style Godoy uses. He's gonna have to straighten up if he wants to win, and when he does—that's all I want. But if he tries to fight the way he did, and stay down in a crouch, then I know what to do. I'll keep my title."

Godoy, as confident a punching man as ever jumped into the ring, laughed this off. "I'm in much better condition this time," he pointed out. "I'm not predicting I'll knock Louis out, but I'll be in there trying. And if it has got to go the full 15, then Louis will be a beaten man."

Beyond the fight, a peculiar situation has come up to threaten the United States monopoly of heavyweight title parties. If Godoy should win, there's a possibility he may take the championship to South America and defend it from there, despite an agreement to tangle with Louis in a return match within 90 days. Promoter Mike Jacobs is to take $25,000 from his purse in Thursday night's fight to insure the return go, but Godoy and his manager, Al Well, may be willing to forfeit that amount, expecting to make it up easily in South America.

The proceedings will be broadcast over the WJZ-NBC (blue) network.

Willkie Is Heading For White House

Facts and Families of Possible Candidates

Six years ago Democrat Wendell Lewis Willkie began a fight against the New Deal to "salvage" utilities of powerful Commonwealth and Southern, threatened by the TVA experiment. . . In 1939 he won that fight, emerged with $78,000,000 for the properties the government had originally offered to buy for $55,000,000. . . He also emerged as one of the ablest champions of business—and a Republican.

Today this big, handsome former Indiana lawyer is a candidate for president on a program calculated to free business of excessive governmental control. . . Willkie calls himself a liberal, says that a true liberal's function is "to strive to make men free."

Willkie was born 48 years ago in Elwood, Ind. . . His parents both were lawyers and he early developed a taste for the law, too, helped his father prepare a case at 16. . . In high school and college he was outstanding as a debater. . . Willkie was one of the first to enlist in 1917, served with the 325th Field Artillery. . . In 1919 the youthful attorney began practice at Port Wayne, Ind., then in Akron, O. . . His brilliant work as a utility counsel brought him

Where Do We Stand Now?
France is fallen. Britain can do no more than make a last ditch stand. No one can now challenge Germany's domination of Europe.
What does this mean to the United States?
First, there need be no regret that we backed France. It was the decent, humane, civilized thing to do. We need not regret having backed Britain, for the same reason. There is no reason not to continue to back her as long as she fights.
But that is no reason to fool ourselves. We face a new Europe, for better or for worse. The French question in the West Indies is immediate. French Guiana, Guadeloupe, and Martinique are within easy bombing distance of the Panama Canal. They must not be permitted to fall into the hands of Germany. Neither must St. Pierre and Miquelon, which are equally close to New England.
Best disposition would be to make these territories independent, entrusting their defense to a joint mandate of all the American nations. But if that cannot be quickly arranged, in no case must any of them fall to Germany. If we must act, we must act.
Our blanket promise to defend all South America looks tougher day by day. Caribbean Central America and Northern South America we must defend simply because to defend them is to defend ourselves. Farther south, our policy must depend on what we can do, and on what those countries seem willing to do for themselves. Canada we must defend from invasion and occupation as we would defend ourselves. There is no choice.
In the Far East, vast French and British possessions are now exposed to hazards. Exactly what our interests are in those regions is subject to serious debate. In the meantime no responsibilities ought to be undertaken there which we are not prepared instantly to enforce to the letter.
Plans are already under way to meet the challenge of trade which will come from all the exports of Europe in these regions is subject to serious clearing-house. Insofar as we meet that challenge at all, we must adopt the same tactics.
But it will mean less foreign trade. We must despite our principles, become more self-contained.
Amid all these uncertainties, one thing is quite clear: we must without delay build military defenses

Canada Is Tough on Fifth Column

Is a No-Man's Land For Communists and Nazis

By WILLIAM AUSTIN
NEA Service Special Correspondent

OTTAWA — Canada has cracked down on fifth columnists, turning the Dominion into a no-man's-land for Communists, Nazis or anyone else considered likely to disrupt the war effort.

A little red book called "Defence of Canada Regulations" was the big stick swung by Royal Canadian Mounted Police and provincial authorities to smash the Communist Party in Canada and the Nazi-inspired National Unity Party. The regulations, in terms so broad they can fit any situation arising from the war, confer on the government powers usually associated with a dictatorship.

Disclosure of the treachery of subversive elements on the European battlefields and how they paved the way for German troops to invade the Lowlands, brought an instant public demand that the Canadian government round up riders of the Trojan horse. Secret agents supplied the evidence and the Mounties swung into action.

Court Order Broke Back of Communism

First to feel the power of the little red book were the Communists. A test case here convicted three young heads of actions injurious to the war effort. They were sentenced to terms ranging from two to three years plus fines from $1000 to $2000. Immediately on their conviction, Cecil L. Snyder, Deputy Attorney General of Ontario, received from Supreme Court Justice

E. R. E. Chevrier an order declaring the Communist Party illegal. That court order broke the back of Communism in Canada. Defence of Canada Regulations stipulate that when an organization has been declared illegal "every person who thereafter continues to be or becomes an officer or member thereof or professes to be such, or who advocates or defends the acts, principles, or policies of such illegal organization shall be guilty of an offence against this regulation."

Next on the list came the black-shirted members of the National Unity Party. A raid on their Montreal headquarters, netted three truckloads of pamphlets, letters and documents. Most of the evidence was anti-Semitic propaganda, but Quebec's Attorney General Wilfrid Groulx found grounds to lay charges under the regulations against Adrien Arcand, self-styled fuhrer of the N. U. P., James Farr, national organizer and other Fascist leaders. They will be tried in Montreal shortly.

Veterans' Home Guard Projects Industry

But sending known Communists and Fascists to cover was not enough to appease the public. The unknowns, the real fifth columnists, were more dangerous because they could not be watched. What the country feared were saboteurs, whisperers of treason and underminers of morale. Defence Minister Norman Rogers had a partial answer to the public demand. A Veterans' Home Guard, 5000 strong was organized from the Canadian Legion. Armed, uniformed and stationed at vital war industries, electric power plants and other public utilities, the Guards took care of any saboteurs.

As for the rest of the fifth columnists, Justice Minister Ernest Lapointe assured the House of Commons that Canada be guarded against subversive elements, that the Mounties and their secret service "are in complete control of the situation, both present and as it may develop."

"The law and the regulations as they stand cover all possible eventualities," he continued.

"Persons of enemy origin suspected of Nazi activities have been interned. Persons of potential enemy origin are known and being closely

Chevrolet Builds Its 900,000th 1940 Car

"Chevrolet has built 300,000 cars in less than three months," Mr. Coyle pointed out. "The 600,000th on March 21, the 700,000th on April 16, the 800,000th on May 13, and the 900,000th on June 12. This production rate closely parallels the consistently heavy sales volume since the introduction of the 1940 models last October, sales during March, April and May alone totalling 307,345."

watched. All military precautions have been instituted to safeguard public works communications, transport facilities and other property from sabotage or so-called fifth column activities."

Meantime, across Canada from Halifax to Vancouver, city officials are organizing "home guard" units for defence against sabotage and treason.

A new formula concrete dries hard in a very short time, which means the stars at Grauman's Chinese Theater won't dare be late.

Britain Still Puts Fate on the Fleet

John Bull Strengthens
as Hitler Loses
Fleet

By MILTON BRONNER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent
LONDON — While the British fleet has been whittling down Hitler's navy, British shipyards have enhanced John Bull's sea strength with five of the fastest, best armored and most powerful battleships which have ever taken the waters.

These are now undergoing their trial and at some time in the near future will probably be ready to go.

These new ships or known as the George V class. Great speed has been manifested in their completion. The keel of the George V was laid Jan. 1, 1937, and the ship was launched Feb. 21, 1939.

The keel of the Prince of Wales was laid Jan. 1, 1937, and launching took place May 3, 1939.

The keel of the Duke of York was laid May 5, 1937, launching was Sept. 16, 1939. The keels of the Jellicoe and Beatty were laid the summer of 1937, launching was Nov. 11, 1939.

Even Bigger Ships on Way

These five ships differ from any at present in the navy. They mount 10 14-inch guns in two quadruple and one twin turret. They fire a shell weighing 1400 pounds, have a very high rate of fire and their range is superior to the 15-inch guns formerly prevalent in the higher British ships. In addition to these big guns, each of these new ships will have 16 5.4-inch and many lighter guns, to say nothing of very formidable pom-poms and other anti-aircraft guns invented by the navy and destined to give any Nazi bombers a hot time.

The most advanced British ideas on underwater defense against torpedoes, mines and bombs have been employed in these ships. In fact, these, together with the belt and deck armor, constitute 40 per cent of the weight of these 35,000-ton ships. They are among the speediest big vessels of war ever built. They are expected to attain a bit more than 30 knots or nearly 35 miles per hour. Each of them will have three aircraft and a complement of 1500 men.

Nor is that all. If this war goes on, British naval yards have under course of construction four monsters of 40,000 tons each, which it is predicted will be the "shootiest" boats ever built.

And on top of that, delivery will soon start of a whole flock of light cruisers and destroyers, which had been prepared for in pre-war programs.

Mahan Influence Still Important

All this is just another sample of the faith the British place in the thesis of the great American naval historian, Admiral A. T. Mahan who wrote the classic work on the influence of sea power on history. The island kingdom still places its main reliance on its fighting ships, both for scraps and for blockade of an enemy.

WITH THE COUNTY AGENT Oliver L. Adams

In cooperation with the Terre Rouge Eolucaw Soil Conservation District, the Extension Office with William C. Page, District Conservator, mailed the following letter to all farmers who at the present time have agreements with the soil conservation district.

"Do you plan to do any tending on your farm this fall and winter? If so, do you have good outlets for the terrace water to empty already established?

In order to secure payments on your soil-building practices for tending the Agricultural Adjustment Administration now makes the following requirements in regard to the outlet for terraces:

"Outlets: Proper terrace outlets must be constructed. Terrace systems should be so planned that the terraces may outlet individually upon well-sodded pastures or meadows, or into well-protected wooded areas. If conditions are unfavorable for this method, a meadow or pasture strip would be developed for outlet control. Where the above conditions are not possible or practical, a sodded channel must be established."

Your soil conservation district does not recommend the practice of building terraces first and establishing the

Merchant Queen Completes Test

The World's Safest
Ship With No Place to Go

By TOM WOLF

NEA Service Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK — Adolf Hitler, king un-maker extraordinary, has already deposed an American queen just as she was about to ascend her throne. A little less than a year ago this American queen slid her 30,000 tons of spile and span hull down the ways into the murky waters of the James River at Newport News, Va. Today the America, unchallenged queen of America's merchant marine, has just completed her test runs, and no one wants her.

It's not that the sleek, fat liner, her 11 decks spacious for a capacity of 1219 passengers and 639 crew, doesn't measure up.

But until Europe's ports once again invite thousands of tourists, the Amer-outlets later. If the new terraces do not have good soil or woodland to empty on, the water from the terraces usually forms washes and gulches at the outlet ends. These washes will extend back into the terrace channels and cause scouring, and soil movement along the terraces themselves. This, of course, defeats the purpose of the terraces.

If the terrace system on your farm requires any sodding for outlets, either in channels, pastures, or meadows, this sodding should be done as soon as possible in order that it will be well set and established when you build your terraces this fall and winter.

Write or contact the soil conservation district if you think you will need outlets for the terraces you expect to build. Available equipment, labor and supervision will be furnished to assist you in this work in accordance with your District Agreement."

Any farmers in Hempstead County not now receiving the services of the local soil conservation district may secure application blanks from Riley Lewallen of Shover Springs community of H. B. Eley of McCaskill who are members of the board of supervisors at the SCS office, or at the Extension Service Office.

Hempstead County farmers who maintain stallions and jacks should bear in mind that corn alone is an unsatisfactory concentrate for breeding animals.

If corn must be used, it should be fed with equal parts of oats, and supplemented daily with one pound of cottonseed meal per head. The animals should also have access to good pasture, recommends M. W. Muldrow of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

A grain mixture consisting chiefly of oats and small amounts of corn or cracked wheat supplemented with bran is very desirable. The amount fed, Mr. Muldrow says, should depend upon the condition of the animal and the exercise given. A general rule to follow is to keep the animal in good thrifty vigorous condition, but not too fat.

Home gardeners in Hempstead county who have applied stable manure to the soil liberally and regularly, or have plowed under green manure crops may expect better summer yields of vegetables.

According to Earl J. Allen of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, no other practice will contribute more to a successful all-season garden than that of manuring or building up high organic humus content in the soil. The organic content of the soil largely determines its moisture absorbing and holding capacities.

Cultivation that keeps down all weeds will remove competition for (a) food and moisture. Mr. Allen says. Good cultivation also keeps the soil in better condition to absorb moisture from rains and maintains a loose soil mulch that is an aid in blocking evaporation from the soil surface.

The extension horticulturist warns, however, that improper cultivation will do more harm than good. Most vegetables are shallow-rooted, and deep cultivation after the plant has attained much growth will destroy many of the roots that supply both food and moisture to the plant. Cultivating soil to the depth of only one inch will destroy weeds and maintain a good soil mulch, without destroying many vegetable roots, Mr. Allen says.

Ice, largest merchant ship ever built in the U. S., will displace her weight in red ink

May Start Career at an Idle Dock

So officials of the United States Line, for whom the U. S. Maritime Commission built the America, hope they won't have to take delivery (and therefore cost of upkeep) from the Commission until after the war. If Congress permits this, the America is destined to start her career tied idly at an idle dock, unless, which is most unlikely, some other ship line wants to buy her.

The America was the first ship to be contracted for, in October 1937, by the Maritime Commission under its 10-year shipbuilding program. The 725-foot twin-screw liner, with an estimated speed of 22 knots, will cost about $17,000,000 delivered, of which the U. S. Line has already contributed some $4,500,000.

The Line and Commission jointly worked out specifications. The result is a truly beautiful, typical American, modern liner.

Called "World's Safest Ship"

The America's interiors follow contemporary American trends in line, color, fabric, and ornament. Light bleached woods are used extensively in the public rooms. Murals by prominent American artists cover 14 walls and ceilings.

From the standpoint of operation, the Maritime Commission is perhaps proudest of the fact that the America is constructed of the latest fireproof materials and incorporates in her design the most up-to-date safety devices in the world. The Commission called her "the world's safest ship."

BARBS

The Missouri youth who roller skated 300 miles to join the army no doubt was thinking of American unpreparedness when he bought his own mechanized equipment.

Since the garrulous Dizzy Dean went down to the Tulsa Oilers some of the boys are wondering if he'll come back to the major more refined.

War being what it is, we're looking for the dispatch reading, "General (one word censored) is reported to have said, quote: (10 words censored) unquote."

The British pilot who got lost and found himself flying along in a formation of Messerschmitts will recall it as the time he got into a Messerschmitt.

Fashion Refugee Comes to America

But New York's Designers Aren't Very Happy

By MARIAN YOUNG
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—It's a saddened crowd that sits itself at noontime on the sidewalk along Seventh Avenue these days.

Not to be overheard at all are the old, familiar remarks—"American designs are best for Americans"; "We don't need Paris. Paris needs us"; "Our designs are as good as theirs"; "Such and such a buyer goes to Paris for the trip—not the clothes." "Nobody says anything like that to me."

Seventh Avenue, fashion center of America, street of hard-headed business men where little except business is done, is now a place of gloating over the prospect of increased business, due to the fact that probably there will be no clothes created by the great French couturiers for some time to come.

Seventh Avenue realizes that it is at the moment the fashion center of the world, not just the fashion center of America. But this fact has a following in the ears of every Seventh Avenue-ite, from top-ranking designers to models, cutters, seamstresses and salesmen.

No More Buying Trips to Paris. It is human nature to jump on a man when he's down, as we often have heard, then there's evidence on Seventh Avenue today to change our thinking. The people who dress America are too stunned by what has happened in Europe even to discuss yet their plans for filling the gap left by the removal of the Haute Couture of France from the fashion scene.

Maurice Rentner, President of the Fashion Originators' Guild and one of the best and most famous of our own American designers, summed up the prevailing attitude when he said: "We are creative. And we will continue to be more creative. We will get along, because we must get along. But to carry on with out Paris is unthinkable. Designing is an art. And, like any other art, is international. We cannot separate American art from French art. Those who have thought of themselves as artists cannot but be shocked at the tragedy that has befallen the other half of the members of their art."

"Buyers who have been in the habit of going to Paris twice a year to bring back original models for the carriage trade and some to be copied for the bus and trolley car trade are looking forward with no enthusiasm to a season of buying exclusively on Seventh Avenue."

"The buyer who traveled back and forth to Europe twice a year in a first-class cabin on the A deck of a luxury liner—at her firm's expense—feels, and justifiably so, that a great part of the glamor of her job has been whisked away."

From Blisters to Bliss

These British Tommies, who took part in the terrific fighting in France, know what the term "foot soldiers" means. Back in England for a rest, they take it beneath a tent, while cool breezes soothe their war-weary feet.

Her Chance

The designer whose job it has been to "adapt" original designs, rather than create them, wonders what she is going to be doing from now on. The young designer who is sure that she can create, but who hasn't been able to get any manufacturer to take her ideas seriously, is hopeful of recognition.

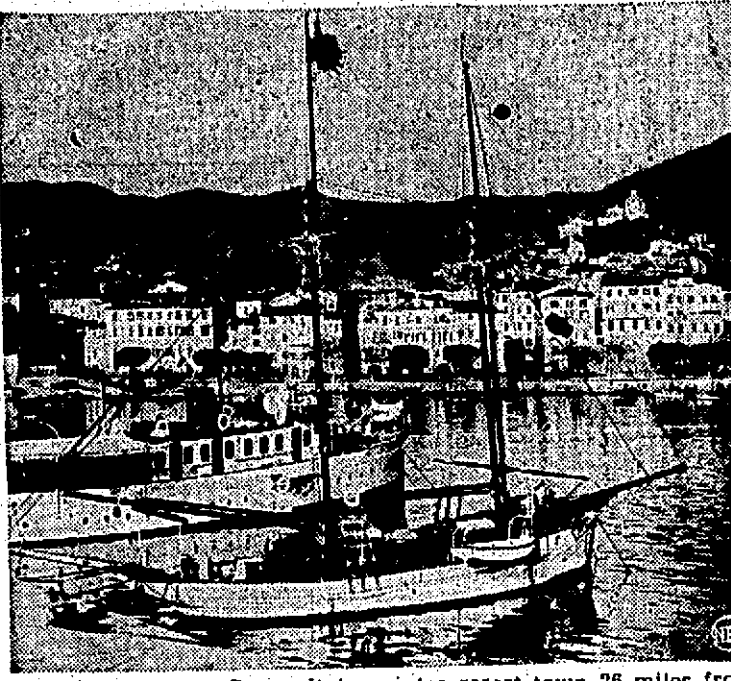

And, according to Ethel Traphagen, director of the Traphagen School, the young American designer may well be hopeful.

"It seems cruel to take a practical viewpoint now," says Miss Traphagen. "But the fact remains that the American designer is at last to have to her for inspiration just as we have had. We proved this during the first World War when designs from Paris were few and far between. Since then, French designers have been coming here for inspiration just as we have been going over there. Now's the time for American designers to establish themselves as true creators. And I believe that they will do it."

Possibility Grows For Early Peace Between AFL, CIO

WASHINGTON—Some sort of peace between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. is daily growing more likely.

John L. Lewis is as non-pacific as ever, but events have slipped out from under him, so to speak. The C. I. O.'s arch-enemy, Sidney Hillman, is now labor's man on the National Defense Commission. Rumor is that A. F. of L.'s Dan Tobin is also to get "some sort of White House job," he's as peace-minded as Hillman, and the two work well together.

Another significant straw in the wind is the return of David Dubinsky's Garment Workers' Union to the A. F. of L. Dubinsky is also all for peace; to get him back the A. F. of L. had to cancel its cent-a-month tax which had been used to raise a war-chest to fight the C. I. O.

Fair Co-Operation Already Exists

More important than any of these developments, however, is the dawning realization here that an acrimonious split in the labor movement is just naturally too expensive a luxury to be carried through the big defense program.

Inside understanding is that the first jurisdictional fight that pops up in any of the important defense industries will be the signal for immediate and drastic White House action—along the lines of "make peace boys, or else."

Meanwhile, a fair degree of co-operation between the two labor organizations already exists. Labor Secretary Perkins not long ago named an advisory committee of A. F. of L. and C. I. O. men to meet with her once a week and study ways by which labor can co-operate effectively in the defense program. This group is meeting regularly and harmoniously; Messrs. Green and Lewis are absent, but through their subordinates Miss Perkins is getting what she wants.

Senate Shifts on Aid to Allies

Profound shift in sentiment in the senate of the aid-the-allies question is indicated by a poll just taken by a private research organization. This poll, which covered all but two of the 96 senators—showed only 11 who can be classified as old-line isolationists, with a dozen more in a rather more moderate position working for "strict neutrality." The remaining 71 were listed as favoring the measures short-of-war policy to defeat Hitler.

Mail Tells Congress to Stay on Job

Chief thing that knocked the bottom out of the administration's hope for an early adjournment of congress was the members' mail from back home. "This mail has been coming in floods lately, and the overwhelming majority of letters have urged aid for the allies—which is right down the administration's alley. Most of the letter writers, however, added the injunction—"and stay in session during the crisis." A lot of members got so many letters like this they began figuring it would really be political suicide for them to go home.

There are other factors, of course. One is a lingering distrust—still fairly widespread—of what is considered the impetuous nature of the President's handling of foreign policy. Another, seldom discussed but quite potent, is the realization that a number of pending laws which would

Goodyear Marks New Selling Peak

New Two and Four-Unit Plan to Boost Output

"Celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary during which, based on production and sales records, an accurate estimate is that more people have ridden on its tires than that of any other manufacturer, The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. is marking the occasion with a July 4th tire sale," said J. H. Walker, local company dealer.

Featuring the Marathon, introduced more than two years ago and successfully proved by billions of service miles on the road, as well as the recently announced All-American first, built to reach 70 per cent of the majority market of users, Mr. Walker said that, currently, he was able to offer the Marathon in sets of two or four tires to meet the peak market in which there should be more replacements, either in sets or units, of worn out casings now running on the highways.

"It is true, as everyone in the great middle class group of car owners realizes, that tires ought to be replaced often, especially in the heat of Summer driving when there are more cars moving on the roads and tire failures endanger a greater number of persons, but the matter of cash outlay has prevented buying more than one tire at a time," explained Mr. Walker. "That is, owners could not buy the tire of a recognized manufacturer at a price that would permit replacement of two or four tires, and the thrifty person wants to get as much in quality for his outlay as he can. So, when we offer the Marathon with its highwide tread, new roll grip non-skid and dual cord breaker protection against bruises and punctures, and stand back of it with a lifetime guarantee, we believe we are doing our part to put good, lower-priced tires within the reach of the majority, thus furthering 'highway safety.'"

"The new All-American, Good-year's contribution to the rock-bottom price range of tires is a great guaranteed value for this field," declared Mr. Walker, who urged that car owners investigate their own tires' safety, or drive in for a no-charge, no-obligation inspection, because he wants to continue his part in helping reduce motor accidents due to tire failures.

Norway Legation Clings to Ideals

Its Embassy to U. S. Toasts 35th Anniversary

WASHINGTON—The other day, I went to the Norwegian legation, where a tiny party gathered around Minister Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstjerne to toast the 35th anniversary of the independence of Norway.

There are times when I wish I could do a sob-sister act and this is one of them. Never before have I "sat up" with the corpse of a nation. Never before have I heard a deceased survivor clinging with such desperate fortitude to the hope that some little spark of life might yet be kindled.

When the little group assembled, there was not one who knew that Norway had given up the ghost—not even Mr. Morgenstjerne. The word still was to come—but except for the minister and two of his aides, none doubted but that death was only a matter of hours.

Mr. Morgenstjerne said proudly that King Haakon VII was "somewhere north of Narvik" (it turned out to be Tromsø) far inside the Arctic circle, and that the Crown Prince was with him. As a matter of fact, the king and crown prince were leaving for England. There was no truth in the report, the minister said, that the king had been ill. The Crown Prince (whose beautiful portrait, in a red velvet dress, dominated the room in which we sat) his sought sanctuary for himself and children in Sweden.

Still Could Hope

Mr. Morgenstjerne spent minutes diagnosing the condition of his country as he saw it at the time. There was, he insisted, no reason to give up all hope.

There was not one word of truth, he insisted, about there having been a fifth column in Norway made up of Norwegians. That was all Nazi propaganda. Norway was just the testing ground for the Nazis' major offensives and they were doing all they could to keep their methods secret. Less than one-half of one per cent of the Norwegians were traitors. The fifth column, he maintained, actually was composed of German tourist salesmen and business agents who had filtered into the country by the thousands, and because of Norway's neutrality could not be kept out.

Two Months—A Record

With tears in his voice, if not in his eyes, the soft-spoken, outwardly unemotional representative of the only small nation invaded by Germany which was able to cling to a bit of its soil for as long as two months, reiterated his faith that the Nazis would lose their great offensive—maybe not soon, he said—but in the end.

He admitted he had received no word from King Haakon on the 35th anniversary of the day when Norway, by mutual consent, dissolved its long federation with Sweden and became an independent nation. He said he himself had sent no message to the two million persons of Norwegian descent who live in the United States. That would, he said, be a happier time for that.

Governor Stassen Will Have His Say

Minnesotans Present One Keynote Who'll Talk

By JOSEPH H. HALL
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

ST. PAUL—Minnesotans who have watched the meteoric political career of their 33-year-old governor, Harold E. Stassen, are dead certain of his keynote speech at the Republican national convention in Philadelphia will not be the usual cut and dried, "view with alarm" and "point with pride" keynote.

Stassen never has dealt in meaningless generalities in this state, and Minnesotans do not expect him to do so at Philadelphia, despite the difficulties of a party keynote with a platform still unwritten.

Judging from his position on state policies, here are some of the things his fellow Minnesotans will expect to hear in that keynote:

Immediate Debt Reduction

Keep the United States out of war except as a last resort to defend our liberties.

Build a national defense of safeguard, this hemisphere by calling the best-equipped men to do the job.

Take immediate steps toward reducing the national debt and eliminating deficits, by economies in government, and by increasing taxes if necessary.

Most important, make democratic government more efficient in action by culling out dead wood, abolishing executive boards and commissions and centralizing authority in single administrators to avoid back-packing.

Decentralize relief administration and take it and social security out of politics by strengthening civil service.

Abandon agricultural production

ent of the Norwegians were traitors. The fifth column, he maintained, actually was composed of German tourist salesmen and business agents who had filtered into the country by the thousands, and because of Norway's neutrality could not be kept out.

Two Months—A Record

With tears in his voice, if not in his eyes, the soft-spoken, outwardly unemotional representative of the only small nation invaded by Germany which was able to cling to a bit of its soil for as long as two months, reiterated his faith that the Nazis would lose their great offensive—maybe not soon, he said—but in the end.

He said he himself had sent no message to the two million persons of Norwegian descent who live in the United States. That would, he said, be a happier time for that.

reflections as a permanent policy.

Take immediate steps toward elimination of labor-industrial strife. Encourage industry.

The list could go on and on. These are the sort of things Stassen advocated in his 1938 campaign. And the things he advocated as a candidate, he did as governor, driving through a luke-warm legislature an extensive program.

In three years Stassen has risen from a county attorney to national prominence.

Standing six feet three and weighing 220 pounds, he is on the go 14 to 16 hours a day. He refuses to overrule his department heads on routine affairs or personnel, but when they do come to him with problems, his grasp of detail problems in their fields always amazes them.

Although some of his liberal views and his insistence on a strong civil service act have alienated a few local Republican leaders, most observers believe Stassen is more popular in the state today than when he was elected.

All Stassen will say of his future is that he is running for re-election this fall, but Minnesotans are confident that he will be nominated and the keynote at some Republican convention in the not too distant future.

WITH THE HOME AGENT Mary Claude Fletcher

Balanced Menu

With the fresh fruit and vegetable season underway, mothers of young children should have less difficulty keeping young Sam's and Mary's menus carefully balanced, says Miss Mary Claude Fletcher, county home demonstration agent.

Orange juice and tomato juice are commonly given the young child, but the slightly sweetened juice of blackberries or young berries is also valuable.

Fruit juices are recommended for the young child, according to Miss Gertrude E. Conant of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, because they are good sources of vitamin C and minerals, and are laxative in action.

The method of preparation of the juice, however, is important. Miss Conant says, since cooking fruit in an open kettle exposed to the air, tends to oxidize or destroy the vitamin C. As a matter of fact, according to the Extension nutritionist, the juice strained from cold-packed whole tomatoes which have been processed in a jar has a larger proportion of vitamin C than if prepared in the usual way.

Many mothers, Miss Conant says, prepare tomato juice as follows to preserve as large a proportion of the vitamin C as possible:

Select ripe tomatoes. Wash them, remove the core and cut into quarters. Then rub the pulp through a coarse wire strainer to remove seeds and skin. Mix pulp and juice well, pour into sterilized jars, add 1 teaspoonful of salt and sugar mixture to pints and 2 tablespoons to quarts, and process 30 minutes in boiling water. Leave ½ inch head space in pint jars and three-fourths head space in quart jars.

Women who have prepared the tomato juice by this method claim that it has a much better flavor than that prepared in the usual manner, according to Miss Conant.

In giving fruit juices to the baby, begin at one month of age or earlier, with 1 teaspoon of orange juice, or two teaspoons of tomato juice both diluted with water. Increase gradually until the baby is receiving 2 tablespoons daily at 4 months of age. By the time the child is one year old, he should be given 3 tablespoons fruit juice and 2 to 4 tablespoons of stewed fruit. By 24 months he should have 4 tablespoons fruit juice and 2 to 4 tablespoons of stewed fruit. The child thus receives enough vitamin C to help keep the teeth and gums in healthful condition.

Mistakes in methods of cooking and even delays in serving vitamin-rich foods after they have been cooked or otherwise made ready for the table, may result in considerable
